LIVE MUSIC CENSUS 2019

In May 2019 Music SA undertook a census of live music across the entire South Australian state, to gather a snapshot of the current state of play.

Compiled by multiple Music SA staff, data was gathered from a variety of sources. These included venue websites, social media platforms, gig guides (both online and printed), word-of-mouth, direct conversations with venues and knowledge and contacts via Music SA's networks and the broader industry. The Live Music Office, the Music Development Office, APRA AMCOS and the Australian Hotels Association (SA Branch) all provided direction in gathering the information.

The live music census has been part of Music SA's annual agenda since 2015. As our 5th year gathering this information, we're able to provide comparative figures to demonstrate the health of live music in SA. This report gives us an indication of the live music climate overtime.

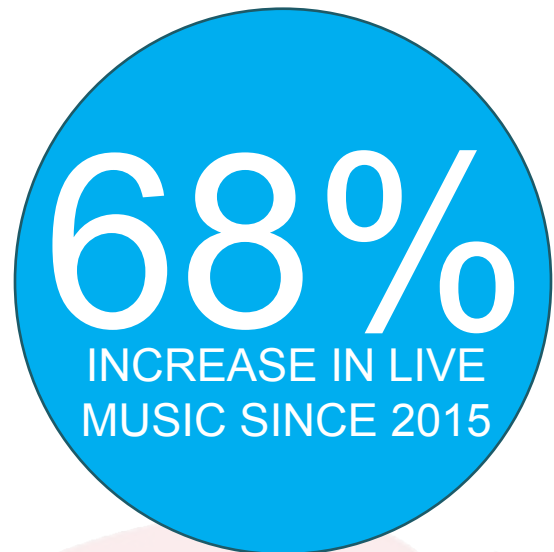

So that the figures are not skewed, the census is undertaken in May each year to avoid the heightened cultural activity that occurs during February and March, and the spring / Christmas seasons. That likely means there's an increased amount of activity outside of May.

The live music census is essentially a count of how many live music events occurred in licensed venues throughout May. This census further calculates; the number of venues and types of venues hosting live music, the percentage of live music in regional and metropolitan areas and the amount of live music within each suburb. It does not include live music at outdoor festivals, nor does it include DJ gigs

While every intention is to capture the most conclusive insights, some venues may have been unintentionally looked over. This report does not provide any explanation about the comparative movement in venues and gigs over the years as it may be that venues are getting better at marketing and therefore it is easier to find their gigs in the count. But what we do know for certain is that our count shows a healthy sustained level of venues and gigs in Adelaide.

In summary, the live music census demonstrates a 5 year increase in live music in licensed venues. This is a strong testament to Adelaide's designation as an UNESCO City of Adelaide. It shows that across the state there were 1623 gigs across 309 venues in May 2019. This is a significant 68% increase in live music since 2015. The metropolitan area had 1332 gigs in 209 venues. This is 82% of live music across the state which also signals a small shift of musicians being more active in the metropolitan area.

Venues hosting a considerable 20+ gigs throughout May include; The Lion Hotel, Arkaba, Royal Oak, Malt Shovel Taphouse, Crown and Anchor, Gaslight Tavern, The Highway and Railway Hotel. New venues over this time include The Golden Wattle, Lion Arts Factory, Nineteen 10 and The Little Hunter to name a few. Additionally, some venues stand out as increasing their volume of live music including Adelaide Festival Centre, Bombay Bicycle Club, The Duke, Malt Shovel Taphouse and NINE 50.

Regional live music has shown a steady 3% increase from 2018

67% of venues and 82% of gigs in South Australia in May were metropolitan based

33% of venues and 18% of gigs in South Australia in May were regional based

In Adelaide metro there were 1315 gigs across 211 venues which is 23% increase in gigs from last year's census.

Metro areas had 39% of original gigs while 61% were covers

78% of metro gigs were held in hotels/pubs, which is a 26% increase in metro gigs since 2015.

Throughout South Australia, venues that hosted live music included 8% of Clubs/Bars, 5% Cafés/Restaurants, 1% Wineries/Breweries, 76% Hotels/Bars, 1% Markets, 6% Entertainment Venues and 3% that were "Special/Other"
